ent specified three principal areas in which new Nazi security measures have been introduced.

These were occupied France, occupied Norway and Nazi-dominated Rumania.

The campaign in France is centred on an effort to win French workers over to the National Socialist philosophy. Four new National Socialist newspapers have been set up in Paris to appeal to the industrial population.

High-Pressure Tactics On Workers

The papers, one of them the "Rouge et Bleu," run by a former French Socialist, Charles Spinasse, are allowed to carry on a violent anti-Vichy campaign with a thin veneer of pseudo-Socialist patter designed to appeal to the millions of Socialists.

The propaganda is carried on with high-pressure tactics upon French workmen who are persuaded to go to Germany to work in war factories. They are given a high wage and good working conditions and conditions which, they are assured, are typical of Germany under the National Socialist regime.

In France the Germans were hiring thousands of French workers at 150 francs (about $3) per day to work on fortifications, air fields, military roads, etc. These workmen get special food and tobacco allowances. They earn in three days as much as they would get in a month on a French farm and some are said to be impressed favorably.

"As a matter of fact we feel better than that. The American people are like an avalanche—it takes a long time to start them, but once underway it's impossible to stop them. If necessary, we'll turn out as many airplanes per year as we formerly did automobiles."

Retirement Profiteers Declared Obstacle To Old Age Pension Plan

One of the three obstacles hindering the progress of development of an adequate pension scheme for the aged in Canada, is the prevalence of retirement schemes through which individuals profit at the expense of those not in reality able to pay. Anthony H. Hlynka, M. P. for the Vegreville constituency, told a capacity audience at a public meeting called by the Alberta Pensioners Society Incorporated, at the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, Monday night.

Inquiry Into Mine Disaster Gets Underway

NORDEGG, Jan. 6. (CP)—Cold weather forced a short adjournment today after the formal opening of the one-man Royal Commission inquiry into the causes of the explosion in which 20 men died Oct. 31 in the Nordegg coal mine near the Little Rocky Mountain settlement 228 road miles northwest of Edmonton.

Mr. Justice A. F. Dwyer of the Supreme Court of Alberta, presiding, scheduled the inquiry to start at 10 a.m. M.S.T., but immediately called a halt until 1:30 p.m. while shovels labored to get more heat into the community hall being used for the inquiry.

The outside temperature was 15 degrees below zero and frosty breaths were visible in the hall. The commissioner and others kept their overcoats on. J. F. Thompson, official court reporter assigned to take shorthand notes of the proceedings, MAY LAST IS DAYS.

Member Urges Jasper Funds

Provision of funds by the Dominion government for improvement in Jasper National Park will be urged by Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, M.P. for Edmonton East, who returned to the city Monday.

She has been in Eastern Canada since the autumn, and, she said, she had been in the east since Christmas with her brother in Montreal. During her journey she had addressed meetings at Toronto, Kitchener and Stratford.

"I am fully in sympathy with the suggestion made for the improvement of Jasper Park, and I intend to do all I can to secure them," Mrs. Casselman stated.

Commenting on the joint session of the House of Commons and the Senate at which Prime Minister Winston Churchill addressed the members, Mrs. Casselman said she was very much impressed by his speech with great vigor and was given a fine reception. The house was well crowded and the thousands of people were turned away because of lack of accommodation.

Mrs. Casselman will remain in Edmonton about two weeks. Then she will leave for Ottawa to attend the session of parliament which opens January 22.

Independents To Meet In Calgary

Special committee of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta, appointed to draw up a program and outline of policies for submission to the next provincial election, will hold its first meeting Friday at 10 a.m. in the Palliser hotel, Calgary, it was announced Tuesday by A. Speakman, M.L.A. convenor.

The committee is to prepare a program of immediate and post-war aims for the association and to submit it first to the general executive.

On the committee are S. C. Hebert, Vermilion; H. G. Brown, chairman of the association; W. J. Shaw, C.K. Calgary; D. J. McKinnon, M.L.A. Glenora; and George Ross of the Courts district.

Inspection Trip

Air Vice-Marshal G. W. Croil, A.F.C., inspector-general of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, who was scheduled to arrive in Edmonton Tuesday, to conduct a four-day inspection of R.C.A.F. unit training in the city. He is accompanied by six staff officers.

British Troops Forced Back On Malayan Front

By The Canadian Press
British Far East headquarters announced today that hard-pressed British and Imperial troops had yielded ground at both ends of the Malayan front, under Japanese attacks by land and sea.

On the eastern side of the peninsula, a communist disclosed, the British forces retreated from Kuantan, 100 miles north of Singapore, while on the west coast British troops made their second withdrawal on three days to meet a threat to their left flank.

London military quarters said Japanese capture of Kuantan airbase would permit the invaders to send fighter escorts with bombers for more effective raids on Singapore. Observers also expressed fear the loss of Kuantan would permit the Japanese to speed an "aerial umbrella" to protect further landing operations along the Malay east coast further jeopardizing the island.

Deaths Recorded Today

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. —

(AP)—The BBC said today that Russians were reported to have crossed the upper Dnepr river as part of an attack on a broad front. This could be in the region of Kharkov.

By The Canadian Press

Russian long-bested garrison at Sevastopol appeared to have broken German lines around that city. Black Sea naval base today, while Soviet transports boldly attempted to land troops on the Crimean coast about 40 miles to the rear of the Nazi siege armies.

Front-line dispatches said Russian troops had advanced north from Sevastopol, advancing at a number of points to reach German outposts and destroy fortifications. At the same time, the Berlin radio acknowledged the Red armies had broken the German perimeter in the Crimea—perhaps referring to the vital Minsk sector, 37 miles west of the Russian capital, where the Germans have concentrated powerful forces.

COMMANDER BLACK SEA

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters, indicating the Russians are now in full command of the Black Sea waters around the Crimea, said German planes bombed Soviet troop transports off Sevastopol, 60 miles north of Sevastopol.

The communists claimed three of the Russian transports were sunk. (Heading 10-Quites, Unit)

Mercy Flight To Assist Indians

Pilot Page MacPhee, United Air Services, on Tuesday afternoon was preparing to leave on a flight of mercy that will bring aid to an isolated Indian settlement stricken with a diptheria epidemic.

Word of the outbreak was received at the U.S. office on Monday from Dr. J. Melting, government physician at Fort Chipewyan, who stated that by uniting a unit of authorization was received and that diptheria anti-toxin be obtained.

The Indian community where outbreak has occurred is at Scott Lake, a lake about 65 miles long which lies on the border between Saskatchewan and the North West Territories, and is about 100 miles northeast of Fort Lacombe, east tip of Lake Athabasca.

On authorization, the Dominion authorities at Ottawa, diptheria anti-toxin was obtained through the provincial public health department, from the University hospital.

Pilot MacPhee will carry the serum to Fort Chipewyan, where he will pick up Dr. Melting and fly him to Scott Lake, to administer it to the Indians.

American Land, Air Sea Forces To Take Stations In Britain

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — (AP)—President Roosevelt, assuring the United States of ultimate victory in "a bloody war," told Congress today the American war program for the next fiscal year would require $56,000,000,000, to help produce 185,000 airplanes and 120,000 tanks by the end of 1943.

To hit the enemy "wherever and whenever we can reach him," Mr. Roosevelt said, including the British Isles and the Far East.

Cheered time after time in the delivery of a message to a joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate, the President told of vast production plans which, he remarked grimly, would give the Japanese and Nazis "a little idea of just what they accomplished in the attack on Pearl Harbor."

Annals Plans For Production

He disclosed these production plans: 1942—60,000 planes (10,000 more than the goal set a year and a half ago), 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns, 8,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant shipping. 1943—125,000 planes, 75,000 tanks, 35,000 anti-aircraft guns and 10,000,000 tons of shipping.

Concerning his talks with Prime Minister Churchill, the President said: "Mr. Churchill and I understand each other, our motives and our purposes."

"Together, during the past two weeks, we have faced squarely the major military and economic problems of this greatest world war," he added.

Churchill's Visit Cheers Nation

"All in our nation have been cheered by Mr. Churchill's visit. We have been deeply stirred by his great message to us. We wish him a safe return to his home. He is welcome in our midst, now and in days to come."

Enumerating the nations who stand united against the Axis, he said of Britain: "We are fighting on the same side with the British people, who fought alone for long, terrible months, and withstood the enemy with fortitude and tenacity and skill."

Admiring the tense legislators and others gathered in the crowded house chamber that the United States may suffer further setbacks in this war, the President asserted that American fighters will "give it back—with compound interest"—to the Axis.

"Sneak Attack" Fails In Purpose

A page boy, sitting in an aisle, led his elders in enthusiastic applause as the President asserted that the Japanese had failed in their plan to stain the American people by the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

A noisy demonstration came when he said that the Stars and Stripes again would fly over the Pacific Isles of Wake and Guam.

The first outburst of applause came early in the speech when Mr. Roosevelt said that the nation's spirit "was never higher."

Must Cut Luxuries, Non-Essentials

He spoke of sacrifices to come and said it would appear in his budget message tomorrow that "our war program for the coming fiscal year will cost $56,000,000,000, or in other words more than one-half of the estimated annual national income." He added:

"This means taxes and bonds and bonds and taxes," Mr. Roosevelt said. "It means cutting luxuries and non-essentials. In a word, it means an 'all-out' war by individual effort and family effort in a united country."

The President mentioned American reverses at the outset of the conflict, but he declared that "powerful and effective actions must and will be taken in proper time."

United Total Effort Being Achieved

The consolidation of the united nations' total war effort against the common enemies is being achieved, the President said.

That was the purpose, he said, of conferences which have been held during the past two weeks here in Moscow and in Chungking and was the primary objective of the declaration of solidarity signed in Washington at the start of the new year by 26 nations united against the Axis forces.

"The militarists in Berlin and Tokyo started this war," the President charged. "But the massed, angered forces of common humanity will finish it."

Retirement Scheme Is Declared Obstacle To Old Age Pension Plan

have sent many a person who had given his whole life to building up a better Canada, into greater poverty, he said.

He charged that very often an aged person's request for maintenance had been turned down by the insufficient consideration for the human side of the case and the much adherence to rules and regulations.

The present economic condition of the country is such that people generally are beginning to lose their interest in the scheme for the old, Mr. Hytka explained. He added that indifference of these eligible for pensions must be removed before results are to be expected.

In referring to inaction on the part of the federal government, Mr. Hytka explained that one of the largest factors facing the pension organizations is to educate a large majority of the public to be the actual experience in the lifetime of these old-timers.

WILL FORCE... Mr. Hytka stated that one of the strongest opponents of the pension plan on a national scale comes from those who make a comfortable living out of "profits" derived from their own services, explained that as long as individuals are permitted to keep their money, the pension of those aged persons who faithfully put some aside for themselves for their own old age, will be a plump profit for the other individuals, so long will the organized pension plan be a failure.

He said that the public opinion across Canada will force the retirement issue at the forthcoming session of the House of Commons.

He left four suggestions to those contemplating to take the issue, directly or indirectly, to the parliament. First, he explained that the only way to get the public more sympathetic hearing is if they have to "feel" the "cold" of old age.

Russians, Ukrainians Open Traditional Christmas Rites

Kiwanis Chief

By TOM SHANDRO

Possibly the most orthodox custom of the many that were brought over from Central Europe by adopted Canadians of the Orthodox faith, is the holding in the numerous traditional churches connected with the celebrations during the Christmas festive season.

In the Ukrainian and Russian homes of Edmonton and in many communities throughout Canada, the two weeks of Christmas festivities commence Tuesday, January 6.

This is a day later than the Christmas worshipped by the majority of churches throughout Canada. After as many as 40 and even 50 years in Canada, many of the citizens cling tenaciously to the Russian calendar for all their church activities.

"HOLY REPEAT"
Tuesday evening each family also does the "Holy repeat". This is their first meal of the day and is prepared with the original idea of meeting on the table laden from all products that were produced on the land. Main items in "koolita", a prepared cold meal, which is seasoned with herbs, nuts and chopped figs. This dish must be tasted even when eaten later, as it is an emblem of the "very first" in the feast for the bread.

Other standard dishes for the holy repeat are fish, chopped beef, dried mushrooms, cabbage rolls (choupele), and dough dumplings (dopelke), specially shaped for the occasion.

Prior to the setting of the table, a holy layer of hay is spread beneath the table, an emblem of Christ being born in a manger. Linen is burned under the table.

Recruiting Is Reported Here At High Mark

Flood of enlistments that has risen to a new high mark during the month of December shows no indication of receding. There were 26 applicants at the recruiting office at the Prince of Wales Army Hospital, Lt. Col. Alan H. Elliott, chief commanding No. 114 District Depot, announced Tuesday.

As early Thursday Tuesday 11 more had been interviewed.

This makes a highly gratifying opening of the drive toward filling the Canadian Army. In December records for a year topped with a total of 666 taken on the strength of the Canadian Army (Active) in M.D. 15.

Two men left Monday for the advance base workshop, after receiving special training.

Ten men have arrived here from Calgary to take special courses at the trade school conducted under the auspices of the International Harvester Co. Ltd.

CITY OFFICER HERE SEEKING RECRUITS

Seeking for suitable material for enlistment under his command in the Canadian Army, Major C. H. Phillips, M.C., C.R.E., 4th Canadian Division, is a city visitor. He was a guest of the city at the home of the International Harvester Co. Ltd.

On his way east after visiting Victoria, Lt. Col. DeBney plans to visit the Canadian Army Training Centre in interview with provincial officials. Lt. Col. DeBney received many of his military and civil friendships during the day.

"Bring Documents" Airwomen Are Told

"Bring all necessary documents" is the slogan at the recruiting office of the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force in the provincial building.

Every day, we have a large number of girls applying for service, who come to us without the necessary documents and that means a large number of detours to an official.

Documents required, at initial application, are birth certificate, recent passport photograph, school registration card, evidence of education including all diplomas and certificates, and three letters of reference.

Recruiting is proceeding "at an excellent pace" according to Miss Kirk, C.W.A.F. recruiting officer, said Tuesday. "We are getting girls applying in all the classifications which are open at present, including general clerical, typists, stenographers, accountants and general hospital assistants, cooks and motor transport drivers."

The first group of recruits, for training at C.W.A.F. Camp, will leave Edmonton Wednesday.

Women Remember Not Forgotten Fund

An old friend of the Not Forgotten Fund was heard from Tuesday when the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Army and Navy Veterans' donated $5. Representatives of this organization were present when soldiers' graves in the Military Ward of the University hospital received benefit of the fund on Christmas Day.

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

Jack DeLong

TOTAL war has already brought many utterly unprecedented happenings to the bewildered peoples of this battered old planet. Not the least unique of these happenings is this titanic struggle of the ages as the remarkable mingling of the people from all parts of the world in the Dominion of Canada.

In the last Great War the continent of Europe was a great and fiery melting pot. This was not unusual for Europe, which has often drawn warriors of many nations to its battlefields.

But for America to become a melting pot for the war-torn clans of the earth to the extent now prevails here, is something new. The Canadian scene, that to the Empire Air Training Scheme, has become almost overnight a melting pot for the mighty battles to come.

From every part of the British Commonwealth have poured the flower of the Empire's youth, in order that they might receive their training in a place that is as peaceful and free. The deep blue uniforms of Australian airmen are now familiar sights on the streets of every large Canadian city. There are also contingents from Scotland, Wales and New Zealand seen in ever-increasing numbers.

These contingents, who come from the south of the 48th parallel offshoots of the Empire, were three weeks ago in the U.S. training camps with the R.C.A.F. in Canada.

Every state in the union is represented in training centers all over the continental part of the United States. There are also contingents from French, Free Norwegian, Free Dutch, and other representatives of the free world.

Solution Is Claimed For Riddle On Editorial Page Of Bulletin

In a recent "letter to the editor" on the editorial page of the Bulletin, a riddle in verse was sent to the Bulletin by a reader. The riddle was answered Tuesday.

O. J. Skode, 1966 9th Street, Edmonton.

"Brothers and sisters I have none But the father I have is my father's son."

Mr. Skode's answer: This verse was first used at the turn of the century in New York when a sap-

Court Still Clamps Down On Motorists

Magistrate A. J. Miller, R.C. in city police court Tuesday continued to clamp down heavily on traffic law violators.

A stiff fine was imposed on Corby R. Taylor, 1014 10th Street, for speeding and taking this into consideration Magistrate Miller imposed a fine of $50 and costs with the option of 60 days in jail.

DAMAGED OTHER CAR
Police testified that Tufford was involved in an accident on 104th Avenue Dec. 30 last, and that he was driving the car at the time of the crash and crashed into a vehicle coming from the opposite direction, causing damage to the other car amounting to $175.

When it was pointed out that it was necessary for Tufford to come between Spruce Grove and downtown Edmonton Magistrate Miller did not accept his driver's license.

Clashed by city police motor-cyclist officers at a speed of not more than 40 miles an hour on city streets Tuesday. Keyhole 1203 11th Avenue, was fined $20 and costs for speeding. He was charged with driving recklessly.

Accused claimed that the roads were in excellent shape and that under the circumstances he was not travelling at an excessive rate. The magistrate remarked: "From my observations the roads are not in excellent shape for driving. If you come back here again you will be charged with exceeding your driver's license."

Donald E. Douglas, of 1202 30th Street, was fined $5 and costs for failing to give the proper signal when making a right turn. His negligence resulted in an accident causing damage to cars.

COMPULSORY CLUB MEMBERS

Members of the Compulsory Club met in the Corona hotel on Tuesday to hear George Day, insurance adjuster, give a concise account of the club in general to members of the club.

Mr. Day, after many years of study in the history of the club, as insurance adjuster, listed many instances of accidents caused due to carelessness and those caused due to lack of the proper equipment in an emergency.

Under carefulness Mr. Day listed lack of proper care while driving, lack of proper maintenance of the mechanism, failure to learn the rules of the road, and many others.

Great of proper calculation of the time of day, of the car approaching or the car to be overtaken, are the main causes of accidents, according to Mr. Day.

Mr. Day stated the need for more education of the children in the home with respect to traffic rules. The committee of the club, headed by W. A. White, president, of the club, has been working on this problem.

Mrs. Isabella Boyd Pioneer, Dies Here

Resident of the Canadian National Hotel, Mrs. Isabella Boyd, 81, died on Monday at the home of her son, Mr. Boyd, 1003 10th Street, after a brief illness. Mrs. Boyd was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to Canada with her parents when she was nine months old.

Her husband, who was 87 years old, for several years resided in the home where she resided in Eastern Canada. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. from Foster Memorial chapel, by Rev. F. A. Mackay.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. A. Mackay of Glenora, Ont., and a son, David, of Albermar, Alta.; also seven grandchildren.

Sgt. Wireless Air Gunner, Miss Robinson, 8708 92A Avenue, who has been posted to the east coast bomber command with the R.C.A.F. He has been with the air force since February 1941, was born in Vermilion and attended Victoria and Strathcona high schools. He was home on leave early in December.

Long Service

With the vital necessity of maintaining steel for implements, owing to the shortage of steel, no government restrictions on manufacture or sale of farm machinery are expected. This was the consensus of opinion expressed by officials of Edmonton implement firms Tuesday when The Bulletin inquired as to prospects of securing new implements.

Saw Today Directors Give Their Support To Summer Fair

Unanimous support was given by the directors of the Edmonton Exhibition Association to a resolution recommending to the annual meeting of the association, to be held at a summer exhibition, including a midway and race meeting, to be held at the summer fair. The resolution carried a rider that "in the opinion of the directors the holding of a summer fair was imperative this year," and referred decision on the holding of the summer fair to the executive.

The motion was passed at a meeting of the association's directors held Monday afternoon at the Alexandra block at which officers for 1942 were elected and standing committee nominated.

The directors went on record unanimously as not favoring the holding of a second race meeting in Edmonton in 1942.

FAVOR RACE MEET
Supporting the motion that the directors recommend the holding of the summer fair as usual, C. E. Wilson, president of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, said that it was unfortunate that certain groups had attacked the holding of a race meeting in connection with the summer fair, but that he was not in favor of the holding of a second race meeting from the race meeting, it would be impossible to hold the fair without a race meeting.

He opposed the holding of race meetings as such during the war, but that he was in favor of the holding of a race meeting in connection with the summer fair, as it provided the funds to enable the association to carry on its educational work in the encouragement of the agricultural and livestock industries.

Dorothy Dix Says:

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I married early in life a man who I deeply loved and in whose hands I gladly placed my life and happiness. After about four years of married life and at the time when I was expecting my second child my husband was unfaithful to me and blantly told me that the companionship of other women was necessary to his happiness. He could not express the agony of body and soul that this caused me. The death of my love for him was a long, tortured process, but with the birth of my stillborn child I was completely free of him emotionally, physically and spiritually. For the sake of my living child I lived with him for eight empty years, but she died recently, and in the meantime I have met a fine, splendid man whom I have learned to love. I feel that I am entitled to a few years of happiness, but my husband will not give me a divorce. He says he knows he can make me care for him again and does not believe that when I once loved him so much I do not love him still. Now can I make him believe that you can't bring the dead to life again? He wrings my heart day of feeling for him years ago, with respect and love are gone. What have we to build on?

Answer: I have always thought that at the bottom of a lot of the philandering of husbands was the men's selfish belief that when once a woman loved a man nothing he could do, no matter how badly he treated her, could ever kill her love. She would go on loving him because she believed that way and couldn't help herself. Her heart was just a sort of winding clock.

Such being the case, according to this cheerful story, a husband with a wandering foot could step out as often as he liked, when he got fed up on fancy dishes and desired good, plain, home cooking without too much sauce in it, or when he got too old and rheumatic to roam any longer, all he had to do was to return to his own fireside and find his faithful Maria waiting for him with open arms and the fattest calf all slain and ready.

Apparently I never crossed his mind that Maria's affection might perish of anemia when it had nothing to feed on, or that she might come to the place where she would look at him with cold, dispassionate eyes and decide that he wasn't worth worrying over and that any woman who wanted him was welcome to him, or that his return to the fold was more of a nuisance than otherwise.

I get many letters from repentant husbands who express surprise and indignation at finding that their wives do not get out a brass band to welcome home the prodigal.

Surely if men knew that no wife ever trusts again the husband who has betrayed her and that, like she may say the forger has unforgotten, the memory of it always rankles in her heart, they would consider whether the kick they got from an affair with a strange woman was worth the price of losing the wiser wife, in their hearts, they honored and respected.

What To Do

PLEASE tell me what is correct to wear for deep mourning and for second mourning?

Answer—All clothes worn for mourning are of dull materials such as crepe or georgette. During summer months people prefer to wear all white instead of black. Deep mourning should not be worn in the country, nor is it proper for those on horse or motor for deep mourning. A large crepe veil is usually worn during the period of first mourning, but is now worn only to the funeral.

It is entirely a matter of choice as to how long mourning is to be worn. Second mourning, which consists of black and white or gray.

Ann Sheridan Weds

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Two of the Hollywood film colony's most prominent performers, actress Ann Sheridan and actor George Brent, were married Monday by County Judge Richard P. Robbins.

FOOT ROAST MABEL SLADE (Serves 6 to 8)

Five pounds chuck roll of beef, 6 bay leaves, 2 medium sized onions, 1 large can tomato catsup, 1 pepper to taste, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 2 or 3 tablespoons sugar.

Boil beef on all sides in iron frying pan. Then put in kettle and cover 3/4 with water. Pour 1 cupful water in frying pan and pour this into kettle with meat. Add onions, bay leaves, whole cloves and cook until meat is tender. Then add tomatoes, salt and pepper and sugar. Make a gravy with cornstarch and stir in gravy after meat is done and has been removed to a platter and placed in warming oven. When serving place slices of meat on platters covered with a little gravy. Put extra gravy in pitchers for table.

Here's another of "Aunt May's" practical answers when skiers slump into the lodge roaring for eat. It's economical, yet a treasure of flavor and nutrition.

LIVER AND PORK STEW (Serves 6)

One pound pig liver, 1 1/2 pounds pork chops or blade meat, 2 medium onions sliced, 1 tablespoon poultry dressing, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Cube liver and pork. Add onions, seasoning and water, a little more than enough to cover in pan. When this has come to a boil place uncovered in oven (400 degrees) for three hours. Then add a thickening of flour and water which is made by putting 1/2 cup flour in a small bowl and adding a little cold water at a time, beating until smooth. Stir this into liver and pork until you have stew the thickness of gravy. Cook 4 minutes longer and serve hot with baked potatoes.

This amateur expert on feeding winter appetites says skiers often carry along hunks of French bread and cans of Philadelphia scrapple. They grill scrapple over a wood fire and eat it with butter. Cook it into half-inch thick slices, broiling the rounds on a wire grill. Turn once only.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE NEVER ELDERED

The problem of what to do about superfluous hair arises even with babies. Some, but not many mothers, are so disturbed by the appearance of a heavy growth of hair on their babies' legs and arms, as to consider its removal. They are unaware how dangerous and how unnecessary this is.

Mrs. L. D. does not suggest removal but the idea would be to use it if it continues to grow so it has such a heavy growth of superfluous hair.

He was born with an exceptional head of hair and a good deal of hair on his body, which I know is quite natural. But, he did not like it. It was so thick that it is light and therefore not too noticeable, in various places, such as on his back and shoulders and upper arms, some hairs are 1/4 to one inch in length.

This may seem to be a small problem but I wonder if it could be due to a glandular disturbance? Or, do you think he will lose it later? Do other babies have this, too?

I am quite frank when I say that while I have seen lots of small babies with heavy growth of hair, especially on the portions of the body you mention, usually this disappears by the time the child is 1 year old or thereabouts.

Some persons always have much more body hair than others, and your boy may be one of this type. While the growth of hair is related to the health of the individual it is true that excessive hair, when it appears on women, or noticeable lack of hair on men, is tied up with the functioning of the glands.

But excessive hair is only one of the symptoms of a malfunctioning gland. So it would be unwise to suggest its removal. Any symptom was growth of hair in these parts of the body which in first days are covered with hair.

In this case I would expect if I were you, that within another year the hair would disappear.

Our leaflet, Care of Hair and Teeth, may be had by sending your request and a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

REFUGEE — By Vida Hurst

NANA DOVALL, orphaned when she was five, by FRED ROBERTS, reporter who taking a job for her, was the first to see her. She was then Mark's mother. Mark, a boy of ten, was in the orphanage.

CHAPTER XIII
FOR the first time since they had become engaged, Nana was not happy to see Mark. If she had only had time to explain the situation to Steve, if she could have told him that in two months Mark and she were to be married. But Mark's expression made an explanation impossible. He was something with a question mark on his face.

Mark said: "Hello, darling. How are you, Steve?"
The strange thing about it was that Steve appeared almost as angry as Mark. Nana couldn't understand why either of them should be that way. But as they continued to stare at each other she suggested that they all sit down.

"No, thanks," Steve said briefly. "I was just leaving."
The strange thing about it was that Steve appeared almost as angry as Mark. Nana couldn't understand why either of them should be that way. But as they continued to stare at each other she suggested that they all sit down.

FINALITY
He was already at the door and the finality of his farewell made Nana realize that he had no intention of seeing her again. Yet only half an hour before he had cheerfully suggested that she advertise for Spanish pupils. Had laughed at her for saying she didn't want to bother him. Steve must like her to continue to ally himself with her in the struggle he had thought she was making. The trouble obviously was Mark, who continued to watch her from suspicious eyes.

"Well, Nana," he said as if expecting an explanation.
"I met him on the street," she replied, resenting the necessity of making an excuse for the chance meeting.
Mark remarked, almost casually: "And having nothing better to do, he decided to walk home with you?"

She had been on the verge of retorting that Steve's interest was purely impersonal, but she couldn't do it now.
"He wanted to see where I was living," she explained.
Mark laughed mirthlessly.

"I fall to see where anything you do concerns Steve Roberts at this point," he said.
This was a side of Mark she did not see before, and she did not like it. But Nana decided not to add fuel to his wrath by arguing.
"Do you want to go out for dinner or shall we eat here?" she asked sweetly.

SECOND PROBLEM

"What's the latest important news?"
"I don't know what you mean," "Think it over," he suggested, but her expression was so guileless that he blazed her. "I see that it doesn't happen again."

He probably would have stayed if Nana had pleaded with him, but she had no intention of doing so. Without pausing to wonder why she was so much concerned over Steve's anger than Mark, she decided to telephone Steve and explain to him.

But when his voice answered the phone she was overjoyed. Here she was telephoning again after she had sworn not to. And after all she couldn't explain a thing like this over the telephone. She heard herself say: "I want to see you, Steve, for just a few minutes."

"Why?" Steve retorted bluntly. "I have something else to tell you."
She could feel him hesitating.

"Whereas Mark?"
"Mark has gone. I am alone." Her voice was cold with the fear that he would refuse, but after a moment he said, "Had your dinner yet?"

"No, but I don't want any."
"Of course, you do," Steve said more kindly. "I haven't had mine yet, either. I'll be there in half an hour."
EXPLANATION

Nana replaced the telephone thoughtfully. Mark would not approve of this but she had to explain to Steve. He had believed in her and tried to help her from the beginning. If it hadn't been for Steve she would never even have met Mark. Mark was a stranger to an explanation, then she would not see him again. And for some obscure reason she still did not understand the put on the black out she had worn that first day on the ship.

He greeted her, without smiling. "Any place you'd like to go?"

McCoys Health Service
Many readers are requesting information on the "irritable" colon and on the colon which is spastic, producing the symptoms of spastic colitis. These disturbances produce symptoms somewhat similar to those seen in nervous colitis.

If the colon is to do its work well, all of its parts must move harmoniously and rhythmically, producing the steady, even waves of contraction and relaxation which are essential to its function. When the peristaltic action is disturbed, the contents of the large intestine are moved along until they are ready to be eliminated. This peristaltic action is produced by the action of the muscles in the walls of the colon and such muscular action is controlled and regulated by nervous impulses.

One of the chief abnormalities seen when the colon is irritable or spastic is that the peristaltic action is disturbed. The movement of the colon may be too rapid and wastes are therefore expelled too soon. In such a case, the patient says his food goes right through him.

In the spastic colon there occurs a temporary contraction of the muscular fibers. Such a spasm is usually narrow, the colon at the spot where it occurs, and induces cramps about peristalsis. Through the peristaltic action, the contents of the large intestine are moved along until they are ready to be eliminated. This peristaltic action is produced by the action of the muscles in the walls of the colon and such muscular action is controlled and regulated by nervous impulses.

One of the chief abnormalities seen when the colon is irritable or spastic is that the peristaltic action is disturbed. The movement of the colon may be too rapid and wastes are therefore expelled too soon. In such a case, the patient says his food goes right through him.

"I'm not dining with you tonight," Mark informed her coldly. "I just dropped in for a minute to tell you one other thing I want to argue."

for I go. I won't play second fiddle to anyone.
"What's the latest important news?"
"I don't know what you mean," "Think it over," he suggested, but her expression was so guileless that he blazed her. "I see that it doesn't happen again."

He probably would have stayed if Nana had pleaded with him, but she had no intention of doing so. Without pausing to wonder why she was so much concerned over Steve's anger than Mark, she decided to telephone Steve and explain to him.

But when his voice answered the phone she was overjoyed. Here she was telephoning again after she had sworn not to. And after all she couldn't explain a thing like this over the telephone. She heard herself say: "I want to see you, Steve, for just a few minutes."

"Why?" Steve retorted bluntly. "I have something else to tell you."
She could feel him hesitating.

"Whereas Mark?"
"Mark has gone. I am alone." Her voice was cold with the fear that he would refuse, but after a moment he said, "Had your dinner yet?"

"No, but I don't want any."
"Of course, you do," Steve said more kindly. "I haven't had mine yet, either. I'll be there in half an hour."
EXPLANATION

Nana replaced the telephone thoughtfully. Mark would not approve of this but she had to explain to Steve. He had believed in her and tried to help her from the beginning. If it hadn't been for Steve she would never even have met Mark. Mark was a stranger to an explanation, then she would not see him again. And for some obscure reason she still did not understand the put on the black out she had worn that first day on the ship.

He greeted her, without smiling. "Any place you'd like to go?"

McCoys Health Service
Many readers are requesting information on the "irritable" colon and on the colon which is spastic, producing the symptoms of spastic colitis. These disturbances produce symptoms somewhat similar to those seen in nervous colitis.

If the colon is to do its work well, all of its parts must move harmoniously and rhythmically, producing the steady, even waves of contraction and relaxation which are essential to its function. When the peristaltic action is disturbed, the contents of the large intestine are moved along until they are ready to be eliminated. This peristaltic action is produced by the action of the muscles in the walls of the colon and such muscular action is controlled and regulated by nervous impulses.

One of the chief abnormalities seen when the colon is irritable or spastic is that the peristaltic action is disturbed. The movement of the colon may be too rapid and wastes are therefore expelled too soon. In such a case, the patient says his food goes right through him.

In the spastic colon there occurs a temporary contraction of the muscular fibers. Such a spasm is usually narrow, the colon at the spot where it occurs, and induces cramps about peristalsis. Through the peristaltic action, the contents of the large intestine are moved along until they are ready to be eliminated. This peristaltic action is produced by the action of the muscles in the walls of the colon and such muscular action is controlled and regulated by nervous impulses.
